

of MushalikS, four parts > of TriphaM, and treacle, double the combined weight of these dng% and prepare a confrction {Modaka) in the usual way. This Modaka covers within the range of its therapeutic application such diseases as indigestion, Jaundice, Chlorosis, dysentery, splenic enlargement, ment, and loss of appetite* Take Vilvam, Agnimantha,
Shyon&ka, Pitali, Piribhadrakam, PrasArini, Ashvagandhi,
the two kinds of Vrihati, Kantikari, Vate, AtivalE, Risna", Shvadanshtri, Punarnavi, Eranda, Parni, Guduchi, and Kapikachchhuka, weighing ten tolas in weight, and make a decoction therewith in the usual way. Take it down from the oven with its quarter part Lrft, and cook the same in a Pitram full of oil (four seers), add to it cow milk or goat's milk, four times as much as the former, add to it Shativari and Saindhavam to the weight of oil. Now hear me enumerate the names of drugs, which are to be added to it in the form of pasted Kafka, vis. Shatapushpi DevadArii, Vala", Prishniparni, VacM, Aguru, Kushtham, Mansi, Saindhavam, and Punarnava, each weighing a Palam weight. Cook the oil in the usual officinial way. This oil should be employed as errhines or potions for relieving pieurodynia (PARsbva Shulani) and cardiac colic.
It includes within the range of its curative efficacy Scrofula, Hysteria, Vataraktam, and loss of manhood. By using this oil, even a she-mule is sure to conceive, O Hara, what wonder that a woman would be blessed with progeny through its use. It may be likewise employed with advantage in cases of lameness, arched back, and kindred nervous maladies of horses and elephants. Mustard oil cooked in combination with Hingu, Tumvura and Shunthi may be used as ear-drops in relieving otalgia. Ashes of dry Mulakain and Shunthi, Hingula and Nigaram and Shuktam cooked in combination with oil, four times as much, should be employed in curing deafness, otalgia and fermentation of vennis in the ears, as well as for the purpose of arresting fetid discharges from the ears. A medicinal oil coated with the admixture of ashes of dry Mulakam and